Ann Arbor Firm Low Bidder For Route 22 Work

Lewis & Freisinger Offer To Rebuild Highway
West of Circleville for $279,895; 10 Ask Job

Lewis & Freisinger, contracting firm of Ann Arbor, Mich., Friday was low bidder on the contract to rebuild Route 22 West of the Scioto river.

The firm's bid was $279,895.65. There were 10 bidders. Estimated cost of the project, which will require 280 working days, was $324,976.84. The bids were opened by John J. Jaster, Jr., state director of highways.

The improvement includes 1,376 miles of highway. The pavement will be 20 feet wide on a 40 foot roadway.

Improvement of the highway is designed to end the flood trouble which annually blocks traffic between Circleville and villages and cities to the West. The road will be built above flood stage and relocated at several points to eliminate curves. Traffic will be detoured through Fox while the improvement is being made.

Civic organizations have campaigned many years for the improvement. The state has spent many thousands of dollars repairing the highway after it is swept by floods.

Unskilled labor for the improvement will be obtained from lists kept by the U. S. Employment Service, Chillicothe.

MOTOR OUTPUT SHOWS DEFINITE FORWARD MOVE

DETROIT, Sept. 23 — (UP) — Automobile production made the first definite forward step of the 1939 season during the current week, Ward's reports said today. The publication estimated the week's output at 20,390 units, compared with 16,000 last week and 28,030 a year ago.

Ward said 10 manufacturers now are producing new cars. It reported that because start of production was slower than anticipated, field stocks in some instances were virtually exhausted.

Meanwhile in Flint, Harlow Curcio, president of Buick, announced that next week production will go on a two-shift basis.

TROTSKY SAYS GERMANY GIVEN BIG ADVANTAGE

COYOACAN, Mexico, Sept. 23 — (UP) — The compromise solution of the Czechoslovak problem does not guarantee peace but creates only a more favorable basis for Germany in "the coming war," Leon Trotsky said in an interview here with the United Press.

The creator of the Red army and former Soviet war commissar, from his home in exile here, saw in the conversations of Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain and Fuehrer Adolf Hitler the following developments:

1. The way has been cleared for Hitler's "Drang Nach Osten" (March to the East).
2. The French-Russian military alliance has become nearly valueless.
3. Josef V. Stalin's international policy has collapsed with the "collapse of Czechoslovakia."

FRENCH LINER IN AIR

PARIS, Sept. 23 — (UP) — The French liner Lieutenant Vaisseau de Paris took off from the Biscarosse airfield at 1:22 a. m. (Circleville Time) for Lisbon today on a second trans-Atlantic flight.

New Worries for Czechoslovakia's Diplomats

While the Czechoslovak government capitulated to the Sudeten German question and the British-French plan for solving it, additional worries were heaped on harried Czech diplomats by demands from Poland and Hungary clamoring for freedom for their minorities. Poland demanded Czechoslovakia give them the Polish area of Teschen. Hungary seeks to gain the freedom of the 700,000 Hungarians in Czechoslovakia. Meanwhile, great concentrations of German troops were noted between Vienna and the Hungarian frontier, adding to uneasiness in central Europe.

DAVEY SILENT ON CONVENTION

Secretary Kennedy's Cry Of
"Be A Man!" Fails To Bring Statement

COLUMBUS, Sept. 23 — (UP) — In complete disregard of the effect it may have on Gov. Martin L. Davey's future relations with his party, the Democratic state convention today approved a campaign platform condemning "all graft, legal or otherwise" in state government.

Backing up the demands of the new gubernatorial candidate, Charles Sawyer, the party's biennial convention accepted as the key plank a clause couched almost exactly in words Sawyer used against the Davey administration in the primary.

COLUMBUS, Sept. 23 — (UP) — Governor Martin L. Davey, defeated at the polls, ousted from party leadership and conspicuously absent from this meeting of fellow Democrats, nevertheless stood out today as the key figure in the Democratic convention as delegates prepared to adopt a campaign platform.

CZECHS GET AID

PRAGUE, Sept. 23 — (UP) — The chief of the French military mission to Czechoslovakia, Brig. Gen. Louis Eugene Faucher, notified the French government today of his resignation and placed himself at the disposal of the Czech army.

W. P. A. ROLL HIGH

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23 — (UP) — Works Progress Administration employment reached a new all-time peak for the fourth consecutive week with 3,102,000 relief workers on the rolls Sept. 10, W.P.A. announced.

MARKET DRIFTS

NEW YORK, Sept. 23 — (UP) — Stocks drifted down further today after opening fractions to more than a point lower. Trading was dull. Motors and steels were widest losers. Ralls dipped one to two points. Coppers, rubbers, electrical equipments, gold issues and chemicals had losses ranging to more than a point.

For Hungary

LOUDEST in the demand for autonomy for the 700,000 Hungarians in the Czech-Hungarian borderlands is Koloman de Kanya (above), Hungary's minister of foreign affairs. In his visit to Hitler at Berchtesgaden, Kanya demanded the return to Hungary of a slice of Czech territory.

For Poland

JOSEF LIPSKY (above), Poland's ambassador to Germany, has placed his country's demands for autonomy for Poles in Czechoslovakia before Adolf Hitler. Lipsky has had several conferences with the head of the Nazi Reich.

GOVERNOR FIRES BERRODIN, STATE PENSION LEADER

COLUMBUS, Sept. 23 — (UP) — Henry J. Berrodin of Akron was dismissed as chief of the Ohio aid for the aged division today after he had yielded in defiance of Governor Davey's orders, to demands of the federal Social Security board for reorganization of the state division.

Wray Bevis, one of the governor's secretaries, was appointed to succeed Berrodin.

State Welfare Director Margaret Allman signed Berrodin's dismissal order after he had conferred with the executive committee of the Ohio federation of labor and had agreed to meet the federal board's order to "clean up" administration of old age pensions in Ohio or have the federal share of pension funds cut off.

Berrodin said today that the federal board's demands were "absolutely reasonable," and in accord with the Ohio law. He said the requirements conformed with the state-federal plan for pension administration agreed to by Governor Davey and the board in July, 1937.

Governor Davey had discredited the board's demands as a political move against him in his recent unsuccessful primary campaign and had challenged the board to withhold pension funds from Ohio. He had refused to permit Berrodin to attend the board's recent hearing in Washington.

During the controversy between Davey and the board, Berrodin revealed today, he had been corresponding privately with the board, seeking peaceful adjustment.

(More about Berrodin and Davey appears on page 4)

'PRINT ON CONN AUTO DECLARED TO BE SERINO'S

CADIZ, Sept. 23 — (UP) — Identification of fingerprints found on the door handle of Ohio highway Patrolman George Conn's automobile today was in the record of the murder trial of Peter Serino, a Pittsburgher, one of four men accused in the slaying.

Leo P. Dumont, of Pittsburgh, a berrillon expert, told jurors that a fingerprint found on the left door handle of Conn's car was that of Bernard Masulla, another of those indicted in the killing and awaiting trial.

Charles Ford, also one of the accused, who has been the state's top witness, earlier this week described Masulla as the "trigger man" in the slaying.

Ford told the jury also that Masulla had driven Conn's car to the side of a road near Freeport, O., where it was found abandoned when the officer's body was discovered last Sept. 27.

Dumont, under questioning of defense attorneys, said he was positive in his identification of the fingerprints.

"HOME" PROVIDED FOR SQUIRREL, BUT POLICE PET GOES ON JOURNEY

Design of a home constructed by police for a squirrel that put in his appearance at the city building apparently did not meet the pet's approval.

Thursday, the animal played around the city building eating peanuts tossed into the rear yard. In the hope of keeping the pet a box was constructed and placed in a tree just back of the police department. Friday the squirrel was missing.

Officers are wondering if the squirrel heard about the game season opening Monday and feared some officer might start pistol practice.

FIVE PRO-NAZIS REPORTED SLAIN AT FRIEDEBERG

Fighting Breaks Out In Three Sectors Of Disputed Area

MACHINEGUNS IN USE

Bitter Frontier Trouble
Spreading During
24 Hours

By Junius B. Wood
STADT JAOERNIG, Czechoslovakia, Sept. 23 — (UP) — Sudeten "Free Corps" forces battled Czechs today in the Sattendorf, Friedeberg and Krautenwald sectors of the German frontier. Machineguns, rifles, armored cars and grenades were used in the fighting.

The fighting in this district, which projects into Germany West of Glaz, began when Czechs resisted the advance of Sudetens who now occupy about 50 square miles inside the frontier. The conflict, in which five Sudetens were reported killed at Friedeberg, was typical of frontier fighting all along the border in the last 24 hours.

I could hear the rattle of machineguns in the direction of Sattendorf when I arrived, and a rumble that resembled artillery.

I was told that fighting had broken out at Krautenwald and that the free corps moved southward after crossing the frontier last night.

Large Force Present

Czechs equipped with machineguns, armored cars and grenades were reported to have met them. The Sudetens reported that the Czechs were putting up a determined resistance but that the Free Corps had a large number of men and weapons, including many old guns.

The Free Corps men I saw were not uniformed and I have seen no sign of German army uniforms. The only insignia worn by the Free Corps is a small black and red ribbon pinned to the coat lapel.

When I visited the Sudeten German party headquarters this morning it was buzzing with activity. Couriers ran in and out with messages.

A Free Corps flag almost 30 feet long flew from the top of a nearby castle called Schloss Johannesberg. Swastikas hung from all nearby houses in greeting to newly arriving free corps fighters.

FIVE UNHURT AS TWO CARS CRASH NORTH OF CITY

Two cars were damaged but the occupants escaped injury in a crash on Route 23 about five miles north of Circleville Thursday about 7:30 p. m.

Cars involved were driven by Fred Volz, Jr., 18, of New Holland, and James E. McDaniel, 58 1/2, of Grove street, Columbus. Deputy Sheriff Miller Fissell, who investigated the accident, said the cars swerved, the Volz car turning on its side in the highway.

Gene Ebert, New Holland, was riding with Volz. Occupants of the car driven by McDaniel were Andrew and Angie Meadows, both of 423 Noble street, Columbus.

11 COUNTY YOUTHS TO WIN PLACES IN C. C. C. ROSTER

Eleven Pickaway county youths who seek places in C. C. C. camps will be taken to Columbus on Oct. 3 for physical examinations. D. H. Marcy, relief director, said Friday that 48 youths have already filed applications for places. Applicants will be interviewed next Tuesday.

French Arm Front Line With Troops

Hitch In Chamberlain And Hitler Conference Cited
For Alarm

GODESBERG, Germany, Sept. 23 — (UP) — News reached the British conference delegation today that Germany had 22 army divisions — about 500,000 men, it was estimated, if they were on war footing — in the immediate neighborhood of the Czech frontier on all sides.

PARIS, Sept. 23 — (UP) — France put its German frontier defenses at maximum strength today after learning that a hitch had occurred in the talks between Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain and Adolf Hitler at Godesberg.

Chamberlain sought and obtained the approval of the French government to a note — described at Godesberg as a letter — which he sent to Hitler today.

The Chamberlain communication was understood to insist that Hitler recede from certain demands he had made. These demands were said to include:

1. Withdrawal of 25 Czechoslovak army divisions to eastern Czechoslovakia — away from Germany — and their subsequent demobilization.
2. Renunciation by Czechoslovakia of what Hitler called its new "military" government.

The government here, it was said, moved to put the Maginot line at its limit of strength at once.

Dispatches from frontier cities told of troop movements throughout the night, of requisitioning of animals and motor trucks.

RELIEF CLIENTS IGNORE ORDERS; FOOD DELAYED

Failure of city relief clients to comply with orders to stop "showing and pushing" during a distribution of surplus commodities Friday at the Goldfederick building resulted in officials delaying the distribution until a later date and making arrangements to use the warehouse being established at the former Pickaway garage, N. Pickaway street.

Wade Canter, commodity distributor, stopped the Friday distribution to prevent possible injury to some of the more aged clients.

He feared the pushing tactics being used by some of the clients might result in an aged or crippled person falling from the steps of the building.

The Goldfederick building, corner of Pickaway and Mound streets, will be used for storage in the future. There are no steps at the new warehouse. Commodities will be distributed to city folk as soon as transfer of the articles can be completed.

D. H. Marcy, county relief director, announced Friday that a meeting of all vendors who receive relief orders or anticipate receiving them will be held in the Common Pleas courtroom Monday at 7:30 p. m. Vendors who cannot be present are requested to send representatives.

Purpose of the meeting is for a discussion of old and new regulations in handling relief orders.

LEEMAN HUSTON CHARGED WITH FORGING $8 CHECK

Leeman Huston, 42, of Laurelville Route 3, was bound to the grand jury Friday under $1,000 bond by Squire B. T. Hedges when he denied a charge of forgery. Huston was committed to the county jail after failure to provide bond.

Huston was arrested Thursday night by Deputy Sheriff Earl Weaver on the charge, filed by W. H. Holliday, Tarleton. Huston is alleged to have forged a check for $8 on the Farmers & Citizens bank, Lancaster, signed with the name of Ray Harmon.

British Minister Demands

EUROPE SCENTS CRISIS

News From Czech Borderland
Alarming; Heavy Troop
Movements Noted

By Webb Miller
GODESBERG, Germany, Sept. 23 — (UP) — Negotiations between Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain and Fuehrer Adolf Hitler struck a snag today and a grave, tense atmosphere prevailed in this Rhineland center.

The scheduled second meeting between Chamberlain and Hitler did not take place this morning. Instead, Chamberlain sent Hitler a letter. It was five hours before Hitler replied at 3:35 p. m., after constant consultation with his entourage across the river from Chamberlain's hotel. The prime minister began immediate study of the reply.

Written Pledge Demanded

Chamberlain's letter, it was believed, demanded a pledge in black and white that Germany would not move into Czechoslovakia while negotiations are in progress.

There was no official confirmation, but a semi-official German source said:

"Just how do you answer such a letter? How can we guarantee not to march into a country where such conditions prevail?"

News from the Czech border and from France added to the tension and to fears that the crisis may be reaching the gravest point since it began.

Fighting between Sudeten Germans and Czechs was reported along the border. From France came news that heavy French troop movements were in progress along the German frontier.

Despite the difficulties, there was no sign of an actual break in the negotiations between Chamberlain and Hitler, and some hope that they might be resumed late today.

Hitler's reply to Chamberlain was hurried along the river bank (Continued — Page Eight)

Foreign Front

BY UNITED PRESS
Europe's "war or peace" crisis intensified today when deadlock threatened the negotiations of Adolf Hitler and Neville Chamberlain, after fighting had broken out on the Czech frontier and France had poured "double strength" reinforcements into her Maginot line.

Developments: GODESBERG — Chamberlain sent a letter to Hitler apparently asking guarantees that German troops would not strike against Czechoslovakia during current negotiations.

CZECH-GERMAN FRONTIER — Fighting broke out at Jaernic and many other places along the frontier as Sudeten free corps men clashed with Czech officials. Czech troops take over important border regions.

PARIS — France, alarmed by the hitch in negotiations at Godesberg, put Rhineland frontier forces at fullest strength and dug trenches in the Vosges mountain sector.

PRAGUE — Premier Gen. Jan Svyrovy presented his cabinet to President Eduard Benes after receiving from Chamberlain an urgent appeal that all parties concerned maintain order in the Sudetenland.

BERLIN — Angered by selection of pro-Soviet Svyrovy as Czech premier, Germany lambasts Czechs again as Communist spearhead and warned that German, Polish and Hungarian "free corps" might soon move into Czechoslovakia. Official news agency reports referred to border clashes with "communists."

WARSAW — Polish war veterans demand attack on Czechs to regain Polish minority in Silesia.

A.F.L. CONVENES OCT. 3. TO FORM YEAR PROGRAM

Wagner Act Changes And C.I.O. Battle Tactics Major Topics

HOUSTON, TEXAS, SCENE

Gap Between Two Unions Still Wide; Green To Play Big Role

HOUSTON, Tex., Sept. 23 (UP)—Proposed changes in the National Labor Relations Act and battle tactics against the Committee for Industrial Organization probably will be the major topics before the American Federation of Labor convention, opening here Oct. 3.

William Green, president of the federation, has demanded, in his attacks on the National Labor Relations Board, that adjustments in administration of the act be made because he feels that John L. Lewis' C. I. O. has been favored.

Labor observers, however, believe that any effort of the federation to change the labor act would be an opening wedge through which employers' groups would seek to amend it further.

Neither Green nor Lewis has shown inclination to bridge the gap in labor's ranks by settling the dispute between the federation and the C. I. O.

Allied Meetings Scheduled The federation's convention will be in session here until Oct. 14, but will be preceded by four other important allied meetings beginning on Sept. 26.

These preliminary meetings include those of the federation's powerful metal trades department, headed by Green's right-hand man in the fight against the C. I. O., John P. Frey; the Building Trades Council, label trades and railroad employees.

In addition, there will be a meeting of the federation's all-important executive council, which will guide action at the convention.

Members of the executive council, headed by Green, are expected to arrive several days in advance of delegates to formulate a convention program of action.

Important roles in the C. I. O., question probably will be taken by Frey and Matthew Wolf of New York, vice president of the federation.

"The answer to all the C. I. O. trouble is found in the system used by the Metal Trades Council," said R. C. Cole, metal trades official.

Called Answer to C. I. O. "All the metal trades are organized as a unit with bargaining powers for all groups," Cole said. "Our organization is an answer to the controversy and should be a typical grounds for settlement."

The C. I. O. has insisted on similar organization by industries, instead of by crafts.

George Wilson secretary of the Houston Labor and Trades Council, said that an attendance of 1,500 delegates, guests, alternates and visitors was expected for the general convention.

Members of the executive council include Green, Frank Morrison, John Coefield, Arthur O. Wharton, G. M. Bugniet, Harry C. Bates, Edward J. Galtner and George E. Browne, all of Washington; T. A. Rickert, Woll, Joseph N. Weber, New York; Daniel J. Tobin and Frank Duffy, Indianapolis; George M. Harrison, Cincinnati; Felix H. Knight, Kansas City, Mo.; W. D. Mahon, Detroit, and Edward Flore, Buffalo, N. Y.

'POSSUM IS CONFUSED OR ELSE TOWN'S DEAD

HOLLISTER, Cal. (UP)—Local residents are wondering if the town is really so dead that a 'possum didn't even know it was there.

The first 'possum seen in this vicinity for years was caught while it was ambulating peacefully down main street apparently unconscious that the surrounding city existed. The only other explanation offered is that perhaps it was a pet 'possum and used to city ways.

THE GARDEN CLINIC

By VICTOR H. RIES, O. S. U. floriculturist

On two home beautification tours that I held in Putnam and Auglaize counties this last week a great many questions were asked by the groups attending these tours. Possibly you are looking for the answer to these same questions.

QUESTION: What shrub would you recommend that I plant for a relatively low hedge that would not require regular shearing?

ANSWER: The Japanese barberry is commonly used for this purpose, either the regular form or its new upright form the Columnberry will be satisfactory. If you wish something of slightly different effect, I would recommend the Regel privet, provided you buy the dwarf type that is propagated from cuttings.

QUESTION: What low growing shrubs can I plant in front of my living room windows in place of the Van Houtte spirea that I have now? I am tired of having to cut it back so I can see out of the windows.

ANSWER: Among the low growing shrubs to be used for this purpose the Forebel spirea yellow kerria, Lemoine Deutzia, slender Deutzia, Anthony Water spirea, Thunburg spirea, alpine currant, and if you live in the southern half of the state, a lovely little shrub called Stephanandra, may be used.

QUESTION: What upright growing trees might I plant to at least partially hide our barn from our house?

ANSWER: The best of the easily obtained upright trees is the Lombardy poplar, but the Bolleana poplar, which is much more resistant to disease and insects. If you wish a slightly broader-headed tree, I would highly recommend the Moline elm. With a more or less oval habit of growth, you will find the Simon poplar satisfactory. There are many other upright types of trees, such as the upright maiden-hair tree, columnar sugar maple, pyramidal English oak and others which are very lovely, but more difficult to obtain.

QUESTION: We purchased an evergreen planting several years ago from some man who came around with a truck load of evergreens, rather than get them from our local nurseryman. We now find that this planting is very unsatisfactory, inasmuch as he has planted the tallest ones in front of our windows and the lowest ones at the corners of the house.

ANSWER: First, I would find out the names of the different evergreens that you have. We will be glad to identify them if you care to send in a branch of each; and then I would rearrange them according to their heights, putting the lowest growing ones

JACOB GEHRES, COUNTY NATIVE, IS DEAD AT 72

Funeral services will be held Saturday at 2 p. m. in a Portsmouth funeral home for Jacob Gehres, 72, native of Pickaway county, who died Thursday at his home in Portsmouth. Burial will be in Mound cemetery at Piketon. Mr. Gehres removed from Pickaway county more than 30 years ago. He formerly operated a farm in Pickaway township. In Portsmouth he entered the milling business and was widely known for many years in business and politics.

Surviving are his widow, Mary; two sons, Irvin D. Gehres, Piqua, and Howard L. Gehres, Portsmouth; four sisters, Mrs. Bert Kellenbarger, Mrs. Adam Frick and Miss Elizabeth Gehres, Portsmouth, and Mrs. Margaret Best, Waverly; and two brothers, Charles Gehres, Rushville, and John Gehres Chagrin Falls.

OHIO FORESTER ASKS HUNTERS TO WATCH FIRES

John A. Bastian, assistant forester, Ohio Division of Forestry, Chillicothe, urges Pickaway county squirrel hunters to help protect forests from fire.

"The Fall fire season is not far off, but at present there are no townsmen on duty to keep a watchful eye over our hunting ground," Mr. Bastian explains.

"If you happen to see an uncontrolled fire in or near the woods, extinguish it if you can. If you are unable to do so, kindly notify your nearest fire warden or the Fire Control office, 107 E. Main street, Chillicothe."

The squirrel season opens Monday, Sept. 26 and continues to Oct. 10, inclusive. Limit will be four in one day, or in possession. Hunters must have a license and tag, the latter to be hung on the hunter's back where it can be seen. Loss of either the license or the tag will necessitate the purchase of a new set.

DEMOCRATS TO MEET

No speakers have been obtained for the mass meeting of Democrats to be held Friday at 8 p. m. in the Common Pleas courtroom. Members of the central and executive committees and the various clubs are urged to attend. Cooperation among all organizations in the Fall campaign will be the highlights of the meeting.

Thinks Time Is Ripe For New Automobile Style Cycle

Noted Viennese Designer Points Out That Better Cars Should Soon Bring Smarter Styles

By MME. IDA JOLLES

All of us appreciate the constant change that is the rule in the world of fashion; too few, perhaps, realize what is behind such change, or what change marks the inauguration of a true style departure.

The fact is that the best style is the style that best expresses purpose. This is true whether you deal with automobiles or the important accessories of women's dress. Whether it's a car or a handbag, it must have logic as well as loveliness if it hopes to start a style.

Personally, I expect automobile design to embark upon a new road in the very near future. Too much attention, of late, has been going to the detail of decoration and too little to expressing the constant improvement that has been marked in automobile construction.

From all I hear, the car most likely to establish such a new style cycle appears to be the new Buick which will soon be announced. Reports that reach me point it out as something that derives its smartness from its improvement in functional design. That will be sufficient to make it a car that at last starts us on a new style cycle.

SCHOOLS GIVEN INFORMATION ON PUMPKIN SHOW

Annual Junior Fair To Be Held In Armory As Part Of Festival

UNIFORMITY NOT SOUGHT

Exhibits Must Be Placed Before 5:30 P. M.

October 19

Information was sent Thursday to Pickaway county schools for the annual school exhibit to be held in the Armory as a part of the Junior Fair during Pumpkin Show.

Participation in the school exhibit is not mandatory but each school superintendent, principal and teacher is asked to cooperate in the department to sell the program of general education, and schools, to the public. Judges will be instructed to keep these facts in mind in awarding premiums.

No attempt will be made to regulate uniformity of exhibits, except in writing. The type of exhibit and the material used is to be decided by each school. All entries are free and confined to the schools of the county.

Exhibits should be in by 5:30 p. m. on Wednesday, Oct. 19. They may be placed in the building as early as Monday evening, Oct. 17. Wall space 10 feet long and either six or eight feet high will be provided for each school. Shelves or tables will also be provided. Exhibits will be protected by a guard rail.

Writing specimens are to be on regular size writing paper with proper space for each grade. First, second and third grades are to use pencil. The fourth grades may use pen or pencil. Fifth, sixth, seventh or eighth grades use pen and ink.

Judging will be done on Thursday morning, Oct. 20. No display is to be removed from the Armory before 5 p. m. on Saturday, Oct. 22.

DIVORCES IN '37 RISE TO 23,614, ALARM FRANCE

PARIS (UP)—Divorce is the ending for one out of every twelve marriages in France, according to disconcerting nuptial statistics released by the French government.

Bracketed with the increase in divorces are the facts that French marriages have decreased 22 per cent since 1930 and that the French birth rate has fallen off almost 20 percent in the corresponding period.

Last year 274,122 marriages were recorded in France, compared to 350,000 in 1930—75,878 fewer weddings. Divorces totaled 20,637 in 1930 and gradually mounted to 23,614 in 1937.

The birth rate has fallen with such rapidity that many government officials are urging government action in encouraging larger families. In 1930 there were 749,953 births. Two years later the number decreased to 722,246; and by 1937 only 616,863 babies were born in France.

At the present state of nuptial affairs, births only totaled 12,000 more than deaths, while seven years ago they outnumbered deaths by 100,000. At the same time figures revealed that today there are only 131 newly married people out of every 10,000 Frenchmen; in 1930 there were 164 newly married in every 10,000 population.

SOME ODD FACTS

It is said that the origin of advertising can be traced to the walls of public buildings in Egypt in the days of Egypt's greatness.

WELL, I'LL TELL YOU.
BY BOB BURNS

There's a whole lot of truth to the old saying that the grass looks green far away. That's because you can't see the brown patch and the bare spots until you get right on top of 'em. I know a city boy who worked in an office and he got so sick and tired of having to punch the time clock every morning at eight o'clock that he just couldn't stand it any more. He had always heard that they didn't have time clocks on a farm so one day he gave up his job, packed his clothes and headed for the open spaces. When he told an old farmer about havin' to punch this time clock every morning at eight o'clock, the farmer took pity on the boy and says, "Well, you come to work for me, son—I don't have no time clock." The boy says, "Well, what time do I go to work?" The farmer says, "It don't make no difference as long as it ain't after half past four."

Notes Of News From Ashville And Vicinity

By S. D. FRIDLEY
Phone Ashville 79

Since Postmaster Smith has "turned us down flat" on the rural mail carrying job, applications are coming in good fashion and plenty of them, so we're sure to have a new carrier sometime not far away in the future. But remember October 7 is the "sure dead line" for applications to be in Washington. Now, we've told you, don't blame us if you fail to land the job.

Ashville—William Lane, well known to many here and of whom we told you a few days ago as being a recent graduate of Harvard University Law school, will leave Ashville Saturday to visit with his brother Ralph a teacher in the Washington D. C. schools. In conversation with William he told us he had crossed the Atlantic as a part of different ship's crews, 60 times in the last ten years, one of these ships being the Leviathan. He is familiar with the many parts of an ocean liner as well as the duties of the members of the crew. He has visited many of the world's ocean ports. The last of his many cruises was this last Summer when he shipped to South America. Soon he will be permanently located with a New York City law firm.

Ashville—At 8 o'clock Thursday evening there was being written around at Marguerite Hoover's drivers' license office, the 200th license, seemingly not so bad for a couple of hours over three days' work. But the other side of the picture does not show so good, there being approximately 1200 licenses to write yet with but seven days left in which to do this writing, an average of more than 170 per day.

Ashville—Speaking of her preacher brother, Rev. G. Elmer Swoyer, minister at the First English Lutheran church in Mansfield, Mrs. Stella Swoyer Martin told us that brother's church congregation numbered 2500, and in the men's class last Sunday, there were 174 and 1013 at Sunday school with the collection $86. Rev. Swoyer was graduated from the high school here in 1907, Stanley Lawrence, superintendent.

Ashville—Thursday evening while the mail delivery windows were closed, the incoming mail being in distribution, a lady came into the lobby of the office and asked where she could secure a blank application as she intended to be an applicant and take the examination for rural carrier on Route One from Ashville. So that's something different and news, but the names of these applicants as they file, we understand, are not for publication. She was very much in earnest about what she wanted to do, and who knows for sure, but that she gets the very job she wants.

Ashville—Harry Sark, who has been cooped up in the postal service buildings about the Capital City for considerable time, will go back in the postal railway mail service again about the first of the coming month. Just where he will be located, he did not state.

SCIENCE TURNS TO STREAMLINE ON NEW POTATO

ST. PAUL, Minn. (UP)—The University of Minnesota experimental station today reported a new variety of potato which its developers believe may surpass the famous Cobbler in popularity.

It is the "Mesaba," described by its developers, Drs. F. A. Krantz and A. G. Tolaas, as "decidedly superior to the Cobbler for market purposes and of great appeal to the housewife" because of its shallow eyes and uniformly smooth surface.

The improved qualities, they pointed out, make possible easy peeling with a minimum of waste. The Cobbler has rather deep eyes and is of somewhat irregular shape. Flesh of the new tuber is white and of good flavor.

The "Mesaba" is said to grow especially well on peat soils, but tests indicate it may have a wider adaptation. It matures about the same time of the Cobbler, now the principal early variety in potato-producing Minnesota.

Erwin L. Drake was the first man to drill a successful oil well in the United States. He made the strike in 1859, in Titusville, Pa., but died penniless.

BENNY MOVES MOUNTAIN

Jack Benny, a man with faith, has moved Baldpate Mountain to a location near Hollywood for the Radio Theatre production of "Seven Keys to Baldpate" on Monday, Sept. 26. Benny will play the role of a comedian named Jack Benny who is anxious to get a serious role in one of Cecil B. DeMille's screen productions.

The radio version of "Seven Keys to Baldpate" is a play within a play because Jack Benny undertakes to write a drama.

DORSEY PLAYS

The very beginning and the current, hesitating "now" of modern dance music are both well represented on Tommy Dorsey's Sept. 28th program over the NBC red network.

The modern tune is a Dorsey introduction, played on the 28th for the first time. It's called "Have You Forgotten So Soon", and though Tommy has introduced several real hits during the last couple of years, he likes the looks of this one better than most. So keep your eye (and ear) on "Have You Forgotten So Soon".

The oldtimer shows up in a new arrangement, but is elementary and prehistoric just the same, according to Tommy, and he ought to know. The song, a real swingeroo, is titled "Boogie Woogie."

KATE IN EIGHTH YEAR

The Kate Smith Hour, with Ezra Stone, Ted Collins, Abbott and Costello, Ted Straeter's Chorus, Jack Miller's orchestra and top-notch guest stars, will bring the Songbird of the South back to the WABC-Columbia network Thursday, Sept. 29, for her eighth consecutive year of broadcasting. The program will be broadcast each week at 8 p. m.

The popular singing mistress-of-ceremonies will again headline a fast-moving musical variety show with old and new features. The chief innovation this season of a star famous for her microphone novelties will be Ezra Stone, star of the Broadway comedy success "What A Life", in a comedy serial. He will be supported by Betty Field, Leah Penman and Clyde Fillmore, all from the George Abbott production, "What A Life". The author of the stage

JUVENILE CLUB HAS MAJOR ROLE IN FARM WORK

The Grange now takes its place among the leaders in rural development in youth education and recreation. In former years the Grange had almost entirely a business aspect, cooperative buying, which now has become extinct in this community.

After the subordinate Grange had proven its worth the Juvenile Grange was organized for young folks between the ages of five and sixteen years.

The Juvenile meeting consists of two main parts, ritualistic and recreational. The ritual is developed along much the same lines as that of the subordinate Grange. It teaches us many worthwhile lessons in good sportsmanship and citizenship. The presentation of this ritual gives good experience in addressing the public and teaches us the correct procedure for a business meeting.

During our lecture hour we have well-planned programs, games and contests. Each year we have several banquets and picnics.

Last year all five of the Juvenile Granges in Pickaway county, namely, Washington, Saltcreek, Logan Elm, Scioto and Scioto Valley prepared exhibits for the Circleville Pumpkin Show. I hope that such splendid cooperation will be shown again this year.

Berrodin To Make Changes
In State Department
As Requested

A. F. L. OFFICIALS ACT

Wire Sent To Washington
Stating Decision Of Ohio Administrator

COLUMBUS, Sept. 23—(UP)—In defiance of Gov. Martin L. Davey's orders H. J. Berrodin, chief of the state division of aid for the aged, agreed today to make changes in the Ohio old age pension office administration as demanded by the federal social security board.

Berrodin's change of heart was largely attributed to the attitude of the executive committee of the Ohio Federation of Labor which recommended compliance with the board's instructions. The board charged political influence was brought to bear upon pensioners by Governor Davey and his supporters in the primary campaign, and it also found fault with technical matters.

The A. F. of L. executive committee telegraphed Arthur J. Altmeyer, chairman of the board, announcing that Berrodin had agreed to the recommendations and that he would send a letter setting forth proposed changes in administration.

The governor had forbidden Berrodin even to attend the board's hearing in Washington and later accused Altmeyer of "bluffing" and playing "dirty politics."

The old age pension chief had indicated earlier that he was not in entire sympathy with the governor's views on the controversy. He had said that he could not have attended the Washington hearing without the governor's sanction.

MONROE-TWP SCHOOL NEWS

The Monroe Township Parent-Teachers Association held its first meeting Sept. 15. At this meeting the officers in charge for the coming year were elected: president, Mrs. Mary Brigner; vice president, Mrs. Gladys Broyles; secretary, Mrs. Zimmerman, and treasurer, Mrs. Ruth Ater. Immediately following the business meeting a varied program was presented by the teachers. The new president announced that a reception would be given for the teachers, Oct. 13.

On Sept. 23, bonds for the new addition to the school will be sold, and bids will be let. The building will be started Oct. 1.

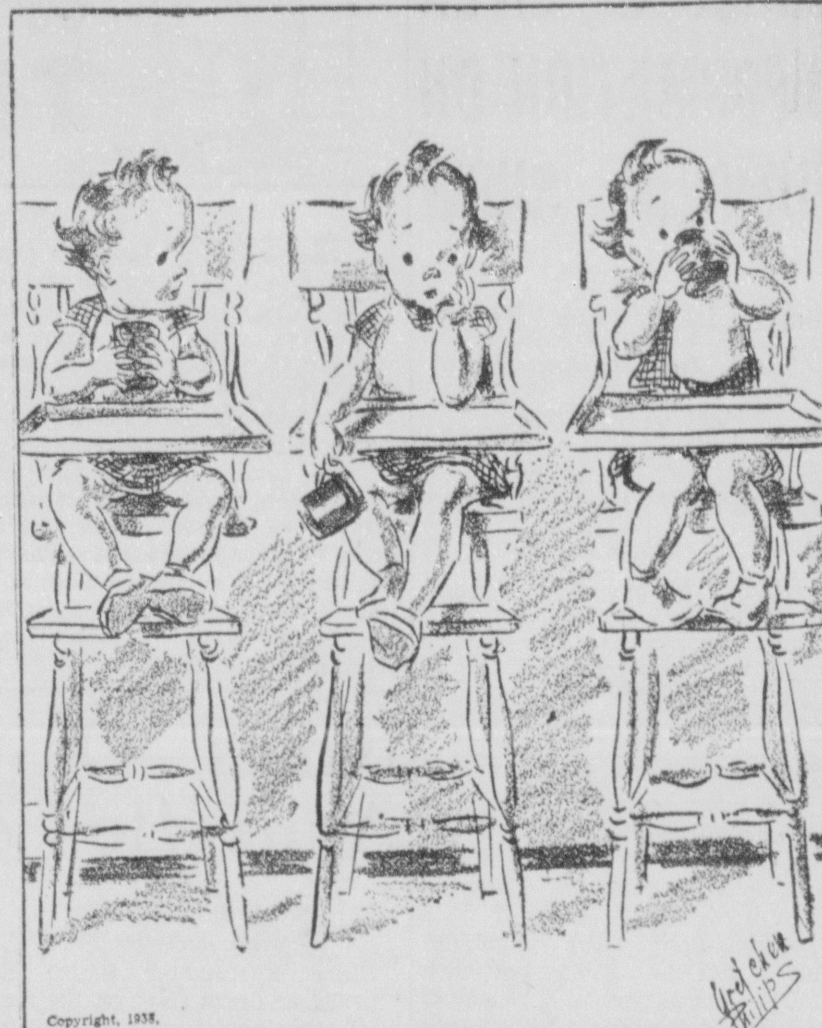

Regular school work was resumed Monday, Sept. 12. During the previous week electricity and an electric pump had been installed to replace gas and the use of a gasoline engine to furnish water for the school.

FIVE FEDERAL AGENCIES HELP TROUBLED AREA

F. D. Sends Coast Guard, W.P.A., C.C.C., Army And Navy To East

RED CROSS IS BUSY

50,000 Persons Distressed, U. S. Officials Declare, Following Storm

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23.—(UP)—Five government agencies—the coast guard, the Works Progress Administration, the Civilian Conservation Corps, and the army and navy—mobilized today under the direction of President Roosevelt to assist flood and hurricane victims.

The federal government and the American Red Cross cooperated to combat disease and suffering expected to follow in the wake of Wednesday's storm in New York and New England.

W. P. A. announced that 100,000 workers already were engaged in emergency and rehabilitation work in New England. Preparations were being made to increase the total of 175,000. Many others are engaged on emergency projects on Long Island.

W. P. A. Administrator Harry Hopkins was enroute from Los Angeles to take personal charge of his department's work.

7,000 C. C. C. Boys Aid
C. C. C. director Robert Fechner ordered all camps in the stricken area placed on emergency basis. There are about 7,000 enrollees in 35 camps in the district needing relief, but 17,000 C. C. C. boys in 86 camps in nearby states were close enough to be used if needed.

Red Cross headquarters dispatched 55 disaster workers from Washington. Local representatives reported that all necessary emergency relief is being administered, but none predicted what would be needed when a complete survey of the disaster has been made.

Chief of Staff Craig of the U. S. Army promised full cooperation to Red Cross Chairman Norman Davis.

Naval commandants at the Brooklyn, N. Y., and Charlestown, Mass., navy yards were ordered to render all assistance possible. The navy's major work will be to establish communication and assist the coast guard in rescue work.

Coast guard cutters made a survey of the affected area. One quarter of the entire staff still assisted local authorities.

50,000 In Distress
Although complete reports were not obtainable, Red Cross headquarters estimated that 50,000 persons were distressed. On the basis of the $3,300,000 spent by the Red Cross during the 1936 floods in New England, officials believed that $1,500,000 would be required for this disaster. No general appeal for funds was contemplated but Davis advised local chapter heads to accept donations.

All army relief work in the area will be under the direction of Brigadier General Max C. Tyler, assistant to the chief of engineers. Secretary of War Woodring sent him to coordinate the work of the first and second corps areas in Boston and New York.

In the absence of Hopkins, acting W. P. A. Administrator Aubrey Williams received reports from state administrators on the number of men needed for emergency work. He assigned Maj. E. M. Harloe, acting W. P. A. chief engineer, and R. C. Branlon, New York state and New England regional director, to make an air survey preparatory to making extensive preparations for clean up work.

LAW AMAZES MOTORIST
SAN JOSE, Cal. (UP)—A Solomon-like decision was made in traffic court here. A motorist was arrested on a charge of drunken driving. His defense was that his engine was dead at the time and that his car was being pushed by another car. The court held, however, that he was at the wheel of the stalled car, and hence operating it.

David: Triumphant Faith

"BRASS TACKS" ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for Sept. 25 is Psalms 23 and 27, the Golden Text being Psalm 23:1, "The Lord is my Shepherd; I shall not want.")

By DR. ALVIN E. BELL

THE FAVORITE Bible chapter of most folk is doubtless Psalm 23, the "Shepherd Psalm", "the Nightingale of the Psalms", the sweetest song ever sung. Had David, the shepherd king done nothing but write this shepherd psalm he would have endeared himself to every age for the past 3,000 years. One Bible analyst has found in it three pictures of what God wants to see in every one of us, his children, viz., "A Saviour Knowing Child of God," verse 1; "An Ever Growing Child of Grace," verses 2-4, and "An Overflowing Child of Gladness," verses 5, 6.

It Is So Personal

It is so precious to us because it is so personal. In its six brief verses are 17 personal pronouns, in every one of which the believer may, if he will, write his own name by faith: "The Lord is MY shepherd; I shall not want. He maketh me to lie down in green pastures; he leadeth me beside the still waters. He restoreth my soul; he leadeth me in the paths of righteousness," etc. It is so personal I may make it my prayer to tell God what he means to me, of I may make it my creed to tell the world what the "Good Shepherd" of my soul is to me. Here is personal care and loving providence for me, food and sustenance for body and soul, forgiveness of sin in the past and preservation from temptation in the future; "he restoreth my soul; he leadeth me in the paths of righteousness." Here is assurance of answer to our prayer, "Forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive those who trespass against us."

OPEN LETTERS

TO ROBERT MUSSER

DEAR SIR: Your appointment as chairman of the saddle horse division for the Pumpkin Show is an assurance of another outstanding event. From every indication this year's horse show will be a good one although use of the high school athletic field is not permitted. With decent weather conditions, large crowds will attend regardless of the location. Horse fanciers are more interested in horses than locations and several blocks mean nothing to them. Decision of the show officials to charge entry fees and admissions should bring no criticism. Patrons and exhibitors should realize that the horse show has grown to such a size it is impossible to present it as an entirely free entertainment.

CIRCUITEER.

TO SAFETY DEPARTMENT

OFFICERS: Some arrangement should be worked out so officers can keep a closer check for traffic violators during the daytime. Recent warnings have meant little. Both Court and Main streets are used for speedways during the day. The cruiser should be used more during the daytime. Numerous arrests have been made by the patrolmen on duty at night because the cruiser is kept in operation making regular checks on all parts of the city. I suggest that the cruiser be used more in the daytime. The arrests would pay for its operation.

CIRCUITEER.

TO WASHINGTON P.-T. A.

ORGANIZATION: You deserve congratulations for going ahead with plans to purchase playground equipment for school pupils of your township. The project is certain to cost some money; any worthwhile undertaking does that. Your Parent-Teacher association has been one of the best in Pickaway county year after year and the program to improve the playground is just another in your plan to better conditions for children attending the school. Other associations should follow your lead.

CIRCUITEER.

TO B. P. O. ELKS

LODGEMEN: Once again you have taken a lead in a program planned to help protect boys and girls on their way to school and then back to their homes. The suggestion that your committee made before council to place traffic lights at intersections in the high school vicinity is a good one, filled with merit. Something must be done at the Mill and Corwin street crossings before some lives are taken. The lights could be used only when classes are being dismissed or when school is convening and there are many children on the streets. Council, the Elks lodge and the board of education could share the expense. A switchboard could be placed inside the high school building so the custodian could operate it at the proper time. The idea is a good one, one that deserves immediate consideration and action.

CIRCUITEER.

TO MT. PLEASANT CHURCH

CONGREGATION: The centennial celebration held last week was a success in every sense of the word. The attendance was good, addresses were interesting, and each other important detail was well-handled. Your church is one of the leading rural organizations in Pickaway county and you deserve lots of credit for working together behind your pastor as a unit with the success of the community always in your minds.

CIRCUITEER.

TO SPORTSMEN

FRIENDS: What has happened to the project considered in Pickaway county some time ago for the construction of dams on many small streams? Before the recent rains, many creeks in the county either went dry or were practically dry. Other counties have projects of this type under way. I think Pickaway countians should take an interest in such a project and learn if one can be obtained.

CIRCUITEER.

TO HIGHWAY OFFICIALS

GENTLEMEN: Work will be started soon on the improvement of Route 22, just West of the river. Pickaway countians are anxious to have this work started. It is the realization of a dream they have had for many years to make this highway passable during flood seasons. There is one consideration I feel you should give. If possible keep the highway open to traffic as long as possible. The detour through Fox is lengthy for persons entering Circleville from the West.

CIRCUITEER.

TO RESIDENTS

FOLK: Recent cold weather has resulted in many residents starting stoves and furnaces. Heating systems should be checked carefully before being put in use. Smoke pipes should be inspected to see that they are not burned out. Chimneys should be cleaned. Many fires could be prevented if residents were more careful about these details. Take no chances. Now is the time to remove any trash that has accumulated in your basement. Remember this rubbish may cause a serious fire when you start your furnace.

CIRCUITEER.

World At A Glance

A political friend of mine, lately active as campaign manager for a Western state senatorial candidate who, as a New Dealer, recently was licked by an anti-New Dealer aspirant for nomination on the Democratic ticket, drifted into Washington the other day, looking rather dejected.

Perhaps I'm incorrect in saying that this particular primary winner is an anti-New Dealer. He contends that he is a New Dealer, but admits that he is not a "rubber stamp." That is, he fought the Administration's Supreme Court and governmental reorganization policies. Otherwise he maintains that he has been pretty consistently pro-New Dealer. However, he hasn't been a 100 percent, and the 100 percenters referred to him as a "traitor," a "Republican," a "reactionary," a "Bourbon," et cetera. The usual stuff.

Nevertheless the chap won—as to the Democratic primary. It remains to be seen how he'll fare in November.

A GEOGRAPHICAL ITEM

I asked my acquaintance (the loser's campaign manager) how it happened.

"Well," he said, "this is a 1935 campaign. It's being contested on a 1940 basis. It ought to be contested locally and it's being contested nationally."

"If this were a presidential year there could be considerable congressional coasting in on presidential coat-tails. But 1938 isn't a suitable juncture for that kind of coasting. Mid-term elections are unadapted to coast-tailing. True, we had a New Dealer landslide in 1934 (an off year) but that was a freak. Coast-tailing was all right in 1936, for that was a presidential affair. It has been too much to expect that 1934 would be repeated itself."

"In 1934," my friend proceeded, "business was on the up-turn. 'Everything favored an Administration demand for a continuation of its own kind of a congressional majority."

"In the last couple of years we've had this infernal recession on our hands—giving color to the anti New Dealer Democrats' claim that Rooseveltianism has overdone itself."

"It probably doesn't boost Republicanism much; the memory of the 'Hoover depression' is too recent."

"Yet it does take the edge from the claim that the New Dealer has remedied everything."

It would have been better, my friend surmises, if the Administration had kept out of Democratic primaries.

Some Democratic aspirants certainly have yelled for White House support, but not all of them have wanted it. For example, Representative David J. Lewis of Maryland, seeking Administration backing for Maryland Free State's Democratic senatorial nomination, initially announced that he would do his own fighting. The executive mansion in Washington, unrequited by him, took sides with him unqualifiedly.

Lewis couldn't very well reject it.

"THE PRIMARIES AN ELECTION"

In effect, these primaries have been an election.

Nominally, they have been Democratic and Republican, in preparation for November. Essentially they have been liberal (or radical) versus conservative (or reactionary), regardless of Democracy or Republicanism. Or vice versa.

Still, the election result will be interesting.

How many Democrats will vote Republicanly; how many Republicans will vote Democratically?

Neither party, as to label, means anything any more.

The Republican party is all shot to pieces.

But the Democratic party? Isn't that all shot to pieces, too? It's in a majority but is there any such thing?

Election day may tell—but I doubt THAT.

DIET AND HEALTH

What Part Mouth Cavity Plays in Digestion

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

THE FIRST part of the digestive system—the mouth cavity—does not appear to conform to our definition given yesterday of the digestive system as a hollow, muscular tube lined with mucous membrane into which digestive glands pour their secretions.

Yet it is just that. If we were to remove the skin from the face and neck we would see that the mouth cavity is really a muscular walled hollow organ. The muscles of the lips and cheeks cover it completely and make a kind of churn out of it.

But what of the teeth, you say; can you call them mucous membrane? Curiously enough that is just what they are. They do not develop from the bone. They are modified forms of skin. The bone grows around them only after they are formed from the skin papillae. Certain fish and reptiles have teeth all over the inside of the mouth. They are pointed backwards and very sharp.

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

sharp. That is why a snake cannot let go of an animal after it has begun to swallow it.

Human teeth are better constructed. They are not sharp, and with the aid of the tongue the human mouth can reject any morsel of food which it finds distasteful or uncomfortable.

The mouth cavity, with the help of the nose, plays perhaps the most important role in the whole function of digestion, because it makes it enjoyable. The well known experiments of Pavlov go to prove this.

Pavlov showed that when an appetizing dish is smelled and especially tasted, even before a morsel reaches the stomach, the reflex from the organs of smell and taste cause a great outflow of gastric juice. The stomach is prepared to digest the food long before it arrives. This is called appetite juice. It is quite within the bounds of possibility to suppose that the reason many people have indigestion is because they are deficient in taste and smell.

The teeth are the most important organs of digestion from the mechanical viewpoint. There are eight in each side of the jaw, upper and lower—thirty-two in all in the adult jaw. They are most efficient pulverizers, and the mechanical breakup of food as done by the teeth allows the digestive juices to get to all surfaces. Of course the digestive juices CAN reduce large pieces of food to solution, but the teeth make it a good deal easier.

As to how many times you should chew your food I have no intention of going on record. Paying too much attention to that might undo all the good work of the appetite reflexes of smell and taste. The more natural and less controlled any function is, the healthier the organism.

QUESTIONS FROM READERS
F. S. W.: "Is there anything that will prevent car-sickness? I will be grateful for any information in regard to this trouble."

Answer: Car-sickness and seasickness have the same basis—a disturbance of the organ of equilibrium. Any sedative which quiets this will tend to bring relief—such as beer, aspirin, sodium amylal or paregoric.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Seven pamphlets by Dr. Clendening can now be obtained by sending 10 cents in coin for each, and a self-addressed envelope stamped with three-cent stamp, to Dr. Logan Clendening in care of this paper. The pamphlets are: "Three Weeks' Reducing Diet," "Indigestion and Constipation," "Relief of Gout and Gravel," "Infant Feeding," "Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetes," "Feminine Hygiene" and "The Care of the Hair and Skin."

AFRAID TO MARRY

HELEN WELSHIMER

Written for and Released by CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION

READ THIS FIRST:

Judy Rogers, New York heiress, whose father has been wiped out in a financial crash, finally lands a job as social secretary to the wealthy Abbey Boland. Her brother, because Craig Danby, the man she loved, married another girl, she finds herself becoming interested in Ronald Birrell, brilliant young attorney from Tennessee who recently joined the firm of her father's lawyers, remarried, is abroad. When Craig and his bride have a misunderstanding, it is Judy who brings them together. Abbey is making preparations for her marriage to a count. Judy observes that Ronald, one of the many guests at the Boland estate, takes an unusual interest in Abbey's affairs. Judy is present when the Count, in the Boland library, is about to extract a book from the rows of imitations there. Then Abbey appears, much embarrassed. Ronald phones Judy asking her to locate Abbey for him, stressing its importance. On the terrace for air one midnight, Judy is confronted by a strange man with a gun.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY:

CHAPTER 24

QUETLY JUDY answered the intruder. "No, I'm not Abbey Boland. I'm in her employ, though."

"Which is her room?"

"Whose room?" Her hands were tired and she dropped them. The man didn't seem to mind.

"You know. The heartbreaker. The count—Count Philippe Alexis von Gundersfeld. Got a present for him, something pretty." He waved his gun. "Right through his lousy heart. That's where he'll get it."

"You don't like him much, do you?" Judy asked, playing for time to think.

"Not at all. Know what his family did? Took our land—swallowed it up with taxes, wrong blood from our souls—There followed such a tirade of the whole Von Gundersfeld family that Judy gasped.

"That's only part of what I think of them," the loquacious gunman ended.

"But the count is poor. His family needs a new bath tub so he's trying to get some money."

"You bet he's poor and he's staying poor." His laughter, diabolic, yet quiet, slithered in the night wind. "Don't get me wrong, sister. He didn't steal a girl of mine. No, he bids for money. Like this Boland dame. But I owe his clan a bullet."

There was a noise somewhere. The man swung over the railing. Before he dropped, he said: "I know his room. I get him yet."

Plainly the man was a fanatic. He had a real or fancied grudge against the Von Gundersfelds. Maybe it had been handed down from one generation to another. Meantime, the count, sleeping peacefully, was probably in more danger than he ever had been in his romantic, roving career.

Action must be quick. Judy paused, one hand on the bell that would summon the maid. That would mean lights, voices, excitement. When the din ended the interloper, still at large and now aware of the signal, would come back to mark two victims. It would be wiser to warn Count Philippe privately. Then he would be on the alert and she would have done her duty and could go to sleep.

But how should she warn him? There was a telephone connection between all rooms in the many winged mansion, but at this hour no servant operated it. That was out. Abbey would be cross if she were awakened at this hour. She might tell Ronald. . . . She wanted to tell Ronald. No, she must put him from her life, not rely on him again. Better to see the count himself. As it was, there was nothing to do but forget the whole matter, summon someone and waste priceless seconds entrusting that person with the secret, or knock on Count Philippe's door. She chose the latter plan.

The wide hall was carpeted. The white doors were closed. Night lights burned dimly in their recesses. It was fortunate she knew in which room his grace, his highness, whatever you called a count, had been placed. She knocked. No sound. She knocked a little louder. She heard some-thing turning sleepily. The third time she beat a swift staccato message on the closed door.

"Who's there?" Count Philippe was awakened thoroughly, judging from that tone.

"Hurry, meet me in the den. It's Judy Rogers."

"Judy! Hold everything!" She spoke in a stage whisper, hoping he would hear. "Don't—turn—on—the—light. And hurry!"

It was a matter of seconds until he opened the door. To Judy it seemed to be long minutes. She reached beyond him and closed the door. Her knees felt weak. Now that the count had come to her without being stopped by a shot, she was feeling faint and wobbly.

He noticed and reached out a supporting arm. He made no sign that he was curious as to why she had summoned him at the crack of dawn. In a moment Judy withdrew from the arm. She felt better.

"I'm sorry," she said, and tried to smile. "I had to get you out of that room. You were about to be shot."

"Shot?" His eyebrows drew upward in wonderment. "I may deserve it but who would do it?"

"An old tenant of your family's. I saw him on the balcony flourishing a gun, and he told me about it. He's hunting you now. You can't go back to that room. If you'll wait, I'll go to my room and ring for the butler to move you."

"I'll stroll along, just for the walk."

Count Philippe lounged against the wall while Judy entered her own room and rang the butler. She came back to the door, to wait with him.

She wasn't prepared for the searching glance of his dark eyes. "Judy, why did you summon me—warn me, I mean? Why didn't you let the bozo shoot me? That would have been the end of the Von Gundersfelds and plenty of people would enjoy burning the family crest."

"This is America. We don't let people be murdered in their beds when we know about it."

"It was more than that. You had a reason for coming. Judy, Judy, you don't realize it yourself?" He was silent, eyes still probing hers. "You know, you and I could have been happy together. We could have laughed a lot, and sang, and traveled, if—He shrugged his thin shoulders. "New mind. We can't, you know."

The supreme egotism of the man destroyed any fear for his safety that Judy had experienced. She moved away.

"—If I had not lost my money, you mean, don't you? I'm sorry to disillusion you but your charm hasn't made its usual impression."

The count laughed softly, his armor of self-confidence undented. "I never had a chance to try, you know."

Judy faced him, cheeks flaming, head high. "If you want to throw away your dowry and your bride, why not be man enough to say so? Why go crawling around for hidden means?"

"But I don't want to! I've no intention of doing so. You rapped at my door tonight. I was willing to die. I am glad to be alive, but the move, my dear lady, was yours."

He looked so foolish in his bathrobe with his dark hair rumpled and his mustache bristling, that Judy relented.

"Here comes the butler. And now good night!"

She did not open her door, though. Abbey's voice came floating to them. "Rather public for a meeting, don't you think? Sorry to intrude. Three people make a convention, I know, but all the talking awakened me. May I join you?"

"Certainly, my dear Abbey." The count put his arm around her. "Miss Rogers awakened me suddenly from my slumbers with a story of a maniac who wanted to shoot me. She saw him on the balcony. I'm afraid Miss Rogers was having a touch of nightmare."

Abbey examined his face carefully, then apparently decided to believe him. She was scornful as she gazed at Judy.

"What did you see, Miss Rogers?"

Judy repeated the story. It sounded silly and improbable now. Maybe they both thought she had dreamed it.

Abbey gave the butler instructions to have a housemaid prepare another room. She spoke to Judy: "I trust you aren't afraid to retire, Miss Rogers?"

Three Are Hostesses For Friends At Bridge Party

100 Guests Asked To Thursday Function

Mrs. Ella Hornbeck, Mrs. Henry Mader and Mrs. J. Wallace Crist joined in entertaining their friends at bridge, Thursday. More than 100 guests were asked for the parties, the first group being entertained at a 1 o'clock luncheon, and the other at a dinner bridge at 6:30 p. m. Both parties were at the Wardell party home.

Baskets of snapdragons and other vividly colored fall flowers formed the attractive setting for the occasion. Eleven tables of contract bridge progressed during the afternoon and 10 tables at the evening party.

Mrs. A. J. Lyle, Mrs. Charles Smith and Mrs. Agnes Riegel received prizes for scores at the afternoon period and Mrs. N. Turney Weldon, Mrs. Harry Heffner and Mrs. S. M. Cryder in the evening. Guests from a distance included Mrs. Riegel, Mrs. Clyde Brinker and Miss Fannie Hook of Ashville; Mrs. T. R. Burke, Columbus; Mrs. N. S. Atwell and Mrs. Oswald Atwell, Chillicothe; Mrs. G. P. Hunsicker, Williamsport; and Mrs. Harold Elkins of Oswego, N. Y.

Ohioana Library Society

Miss Clara Littleton, Mrs. Helen E. Anderson, Mrs. R. R. Bales and Miss Nell Weldon of Circleville will attend the meeting of the Ohioana Library society, Saturday, at the State Office building, Columbus. Miss Littleton is chairman, Mrs. Bales and Miss Weldon are members of the Pickaway county committee of the association.

Mrs. Depew Head of Columbus, who is well known in Circleville, will be presiding officer at the business session.

Mrs. Myers Y. Cooper of Cincinnati will preside at an informal tea which will follow the business hour. At this time she expects to introduce several prominent writers of Ohio. Mrs. Cooper organized the Ohioana Library society while living in Columbus during Mr. Cooper's term as governor of Ohio.

Jolly Time Club

Mrs. E. L. Figgatt, E. Franklin street, entertained the Jolly Time club, Thursday, with Mrs. Warren Harmon assisting. All members were present and one guest, Miss Ruby Lucas.

Election of officers was held with Mrs. Figgatt being chosen president; Mrs. George Bennett, secretary and news reporter; Mrs. Fred Fitzpatrick, treasurer. Mrs. Harmon was admitted to membership.

The group enjoyed a contest after the business hour, Mrs. Harmon receiving high score prize. A delectable lunch was served by the hostesses.

The club will meet in two weeks with Mrs. Bennett at her home in N. Scioto street.

Mrs. Young Honored

Honoring Mrs. Ned Young of Amanda, Miss Margaret List, Washington township, entertained a group of her friends at a miscellaneous shower, Thursday evening. Mrs. Young is the former Betty Leist whose marriage occurred last summer.

A color theme of pink and white was used in the decorations.

After Mrs. Young opened her many attractive gift packages, games and contests were enjoyed. Miss Mary Kathryn Bowman, Miss Fern Richards and Miss Virginia Rose Dickson were score prize winners.

Lunch was served at the close of the evening.

The guests invited for the pleasant affair were Miss Faye Sayre, Columbus; Miss Mary Kiger and Miss Eva Pontius of Lancaster; the Misses Belva Julian, Dorothy and Virginia Meister, Jean Ritchie, Virginia

CONTRACT BRIDGE

CLEARING THE STAGE

SOME deals are a good deal like a theatrical performance which necessitates clearing the stage before the scenery can be put in position for the next act. Ruffing out the small cards of a couple of suits, to get ready for a lead-throwing end play, is greatly similar to disposing of the first two cards before staging the third. If the acts are not presented in their proper order, the entire play falls flat.

a spade ruff. Then the diamond finesse was tried and the 10 lost to West's J. A heart was returned and declarer had to lose another diamond trick.

He had an opportunity to make his contract by clearing the hands of both spades and hearts before attempting the diamond finesse. With trumps remaining in both hands and voids in both spades and hearts, when West won the first diamond trick, he would have been forced to return a diamond to South or else return either a spade or heart. If the latter, South would have been able to ruff and discard a diamond.

STARS SAY—

For Friday, Sept. 23

THE ASTRAL operations for this day seem to point to rather perplexing or conflicting situations, with much of importance transpiring. They may result in promotion, expansion and generally gratifying personal, professional or business experiences. However, there may be a death, bereavement or illness to cope with, and there may be need of free expenditures or extravagances, possibly in connection with a secret obligation or indulgence. There may be some curious or subtle situations to intrigue or baffle.

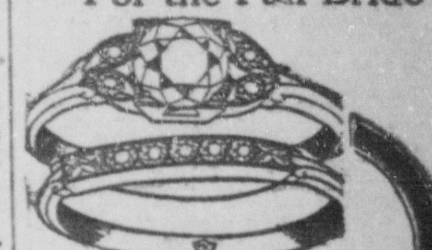

If This Is Your Birthday Those whose birthday it is may encounter a year in which there may be some confusing, intriguing or perplexing situations to deal with. There are omens of bereavement, sudden change, peculiar or mysterious conditions, as well as change, personal outlay and some sort of institutional contact to be managed with tact, wisdom and good grace as well as precaution. A child born on this day may have many traits of a subtle or secretive character, probably due to a mystical, sensitive or subtle nature. However, it may have ambitions and social inclinations of a quiet order.

Dreadful news from the range. The dude ranches, instead of making cowboys of the city slickers, are making dudes of the cowboys.

FIVE PRO-NAZIS REPORTED SLAIN AT FRIEDEBERG

Fighting Breaks Out In Three Sectors Of Disputed Area

here, the Free Corps advance was being resisted by Czech gendarmes, customs officials and "Communists."

The sound of firing at Saltzdorf was audible from here. There was machine gun and rifle fire and what sounded like artillery.

Stadt Jaernig is the center of that part of Czechoslovakia which projects into Germany westward of Graz and southward of Frankenstein. It is toward the Polish frontier.

Czech troops began re-occupying frontier towns late yesterday, only a few hours after Gen. Jan Syrový, head of the army, became premier and war minister. They carried full military equipment and took over the barracks from which they had retired the day before when Czechoslovakia bowed to the "sacrifice" decision of Great Britain and France.

Russia Assisting

German reports said that Russia had dispatched airplanes and pilots to aid Czechoslovakia.

Here, and at nearby Asch, the tension mounted hourly. The Sudeten German population which up until dusk yesterday had prematurely celebrated their incorporation into Germany. People feared the Czechs would take reprisals for the display of the Nazi swastika, the singing of "Horst Wessel" and the "Deutschland Über Alles," the exuberant demonstrations.

The Czech authorities and soldiers had looked on dejectedly while the Sudetens held their "Anschluss celebration." Today, however, they again were in control and sought to carry out General Syrový's order to maintain national discipline.

The official German news agency reported from Tautenau that 39 Russian airplanes had landed in the immediate vicinity of Sudetenland. Twenty-one bi-motored monoplanes were said to have landed at Pardubice airport. Their markings were indistinguishable through a coat of yellow paint. Eighteen more were said to have landed at Bohdačev air-drome. Twenty Soviet air force officers were staying in barracks and hotels in Schaslau, the agency asserted.

DAVEY SILENT ON CONVENTION

tained frigid silence in the face of a demand from the convention rostrum by Secretary of State William J. Kennedy to "be a man." Kennedy urged him to "unshackle" state employees and remove the reported threat that they would lose their jobs if they dared support Charles Sawyer, gubernatorial nominee.

Around the governor revolved also the question of how strong would be the language of the platform on the "reform" issue in state government. The platform committee was to decide yet today whether to submit for ratification the plank drafted by Sawyer managers and described as "an unequivocal demand for elimination of graft and corruption."

The new candidate's friends expressed confidence the plank would remain, but the possibility existed that the language might be made somewhat less vigorous than in its original form.

Kennedy broke the underlying tension of a jittery convention by boldly confronting the ex-party leader with reports that "the governor of Ohio has boycotted this convention." Postmaster James A. Farley and Sen. A. Vic Donahey had spoken in veiled terms of the necessity for a united party, but Kennedy came to the point with astonishing candor.

"Martin L. Davey, be a man!" Kennedy cried.

"In the name of everything decent and manly I call upon Martin L. Davey to unshackle the state employees (those not under civil service). I call upon Martin L. Davey to give back to thousands of men and women the God-given right to vote.

"Reports are persistent that since the primary literally thousands of state employees have been disfranchised by the threat of losing their jobs. This, if true, is a half-crazed war lord of Europe would shy away from. This, if true, is Russia when Russia really gets tough."

British Minister Demands That Fuehrer Delay Move Into Sudeten District

by a fast automobile in which was Dr. Paul Schmidt, Hitler's official interpreter.

At the ferry, which had been waiting, the reply was handed into another automobile, which took it to Chamberlain's hotel.

Another Vote Seen

At the same time, observers from the hotel balcony thought they saw another envelope handed to Schmidt from an automobile which came down from Chamberlain's hotel.

A propaganda ministry official said that since the British must translate the reply, it was doubtful there would be any immediate further contact between Chamberlain and Hitler, if arrangements had been made for them to meet at all today.

Very high Nazi quarters were quoted as having said the whole situation had been changed by the appointment of a "red general" to head the Prague government and that obviously Germany could not tolerate such a menace.

Informed German private sources said "anything may be expected, but we are completely in the dark about what will be the future moves, not only in the international situation but the Chamberlain-Hitler contacts."

QUINTS REMAIN ONTARIO'S BEST TOURIST SHOW

TORONTO, Ont. (UP)—The Dionne Quintuplets probably will continue next year to be one of Ontario's greatest tourist attractions. Keith Munro, the babies' business manager, said here.

Munro denied reports that it was planned to stop the Quints' public appearances at the playground of their home at Callander, Ont.

"There is no reason to think that they won't be shown," he said. "It is just another of those rumors that seem to develop so often concerning the babies."

Tourist and travel agencies here said there was no decrease in the Quints' attraction to tourists.

"They appear just as good an attraction this year as ever before," a spokesman for the Ontario Convention and Tourist Association said. "We believe they are bringing just as much business to Ontario as ever. The Provincial Government's tourist bureau estimated the Quints were responsible for bringing $20,000,000 of the $100,000,000 of tourist business to Ontario last year."

ARMY AIRPLANE REPORTED DOWN AT HUDSON, N. Y.

HUDSON, N. Y., Sept. 23—(UP)—An airplane, believed to be a U. S. Army ship, crashed on Mt. Merino, one and a half miles South of this Hudson River city today after apparently exploding in mid-air.

Persons who heard the explosion when the plane was over Hudson believed it fell on the heavily-wooded hill. One wing was found nearby. It was yellow and had a star on it, leading to the belief the plane belonged to the army.

Albany airport officials said an army plane piloted by Capt. M. C. Harper, had left Albany airport for Mitchell Field, on Long Island, this morning.

Harper, they said, should have been past the scene of the accident 31 miles South of Albany, at 10:30 a. m., when the accident was reported.

MITCHEL FIELD, N. Y., Sept. 23—(UP)—A spokesman said today that army headquarters here had no information regarding the crash of an airplane at Hudson, N. Y.

He said that Capt. M. C. Harper, who had left Albany to fly to Mitchell field, was overdue and his whereabouts had not been reported.

Flood Emergency Feared At Hartford; Deaths To Pass 500

was due and authorities believed the dykes would hold and only a small section of the city would be flooded.

A flood crest was in the Merrimack, rolled past Nashua, N. H., early today and was due at Lowell, Mass., around 6 a. m. There, too, it was believed that the dykes, reinforced under emergency conditions, would hold.

The Connecticut river crest was due at Hartford at noon and there was no certainty that it would not cause a major flood. Residents had been forced to leave their homes and emergency conditions prevailed.

In New Jersey, Rancocas creek rose 14 feet in 24 hours and flooded eight towns. No one was drowned, but hundreds were made homeless.

In upper New York state, the Hudson and Mohawk rivers were brim full and still rising. It was feared that they would flood at any moment and hundreds were evacuated from low-lying sections of Troy, Waterford, Albany, and Rensselaer.

But most pressing was the needs and the sufferings of thousands crowded in refugee camps in New England particularly Rhode Island who had no homes to go to because they had been wrecked by hurricane, were, in many cases isolated, were on short rations because communications had been only restored partially, and were threatened with disease.

So pressing was this problem, that President Roosevelt, responding to the appeal of New England governors, ordered federal agencies—the Red Cross, the coast guard, the Works Progress Administration, the Civilian Conservation Corps, and the army and navy to mobilize their full facilities. Harry L. Hopkins, W. P. A. administrator, was to fly to New England from California to take personal charge of W. P. A. activities.

The situation by states:

Rhode Island
Dead, 217. Missing, approximately 300. Homeless, 5,000. The hurricane center passed through this state and a huge tidal wave rolled over its coast. Providence, its largest city, suffered frightful damage. Banks and stores still were closed. National guardsmen prevented looting. Doctors and nurses administered serums to the homeless and rescue workers fed them. Water had to be boiled. A dozen small communities were partially isolated and where it was possible, drinking water was sent to them in railroad tank cars. In virtually all of the state, there was no electricity and the power cannot be turned on until the wrecked windings of partially ruined buildings and torn-down power lines have been repaired, lest there be an epidemic of electrocutions and fires caused by short circuits.

These cities and towns suffered most: Providence, Charlestown, Misquamicut, Island Park, (sections of Portsmouth.) Newport. Villages along the eastern shore of Narragansett bay.

Property damage estimated at "not less than $100,000,000." Gov. Robert E. Quinn mobilized every resource of the state—police powers—economic—medical.

Massachusetts

Dead, 135. Missing, approximately, 100. Homeless, 7,000. Hurricane disaster quickly followed by floods. Merrimack and Connecticut rivers brimming but believed under control. Four feet of water covered streets in South Springfield, five thousand persons evacuated from flooded or threatened sections, lodged in high school. Crest due this morning, expected to pass without further damage. Lowell, Lawrence, and Haverhill threatened with heavy damage from swollen Merrimack where hundreds had been evacuated. Relief work in Cape Code area and in southeast part of state worst hit by hurricane, advancing rapidly with 3,000 national guardsmen still protecting wrecked towns, preventing looting. Gilbertville and Ware still isolated and serums will be dropped there today by airplane. Trucks and boats take badly needed food and medicinal supplies to Barre, South Barre, Barre Plaines, Brookfield, and Wareham. In a refugee camp at Wareham were 100 adults and 200 children clad, for the most part in pajamas and bathrobes.

They had barely managed to escape from their collapsing homes. They were in dire need of clothing. A breakdown of the sewer system menaced Fitchburg but the situation was under control. In all sections of the flood and hurricane zones, drinking water had to be boiled. Doctors and nurses worked on emergency schedule administering vaccines and supervising sanitation. Property loss and damage from both hurricane and flood estimated at $100,000,000.

Connecticut

Dead, 54. Missing, 20. Homeless, 5,000. Floods threaten Hartford, the capital, and other towns along the Connecticut river. Crest expected at Hartford at noon where 500 men were sandbagging the dyke. Approximately 3,000 families moved out of sections of Hartford and quartered in schools and armories. Red Cross, state health department, 300 national guardsmen maintained order. At Middletown, 150 families evacuated from lowlands and taken to armory. War veterans patrol streets. No electric power in Middletown and most sections of Hartford. No threat of disease, sanitation good. New London, worst struck town, cleared debris from streets. Fires started by the hurricane, caused as much damage as the wind. Twenty missing here and all feared dead. Hospitals filled with injured. No water, no electricity, no telephone service. Norwich still isolated and serums were dropped from airplanes for the use of local physicians. Rockville, Clinton, Old Lyme, Madison, Saybrook, Milford, West Brook, Guilford, hard hit. Property damage and loss estimated at $30,000,000.

New York

Dead, 48. Missing 36. Homeless, 2,000. West Hampton, Summer playground on Long Island, and vicinity hardest hit. Scene of destruction extends 40 miles along beach where searchers still hunting 36 feared dead. Most roads clogged. Light and water service suspended and drinking water hauled to survivors. Many palatial estates destroyed. Fashionable West Hampton beach club used as morgue. New York City, where winds attained only full gale force, counts 10 dead. Fire Island, south

Guard Harden Only Wearer Of Tiger Colors Out With Injuries

LINEUP BELIEVED SET
Tickets Available Uptown To Avoid Congestion At Gate

Tiger gridgers, with the exception of Guard Moe Harden, who has a leg injury, were primed today to meet the onslaughts of the fast Worthington football varsity at 8 o'clock tonight on the lighted high school field. Harden received a leg injury a week ago and has not been in uniform this week. However, every other wearer of the Red and Black is in excellent condition and in splendid fettle for tonight's contest.

Worthington, under Coach Ernie Roush, comes to Circleville prepared to return home with a victory. The team is fast and uses a varied offensive. Coach Roy Black's Red and Black boys are just as certain that they will redeem their loss of a week ago to West Jefferson by knocking off the Franklin county outfit. Worthington will provide plenty of opposition, its game last week indicates, so the Tigers will have to hear down from the go. Delaware took the Worthington lads into camp 13-0, but the game was a good one from the start to the finish.

Blocking Stressed
A week of hard drills has prepared the Tigers for anything that might happen tonight. High school coaches have insisted on improvement in blocking and line chugging and, it is highly probable, that the boys who do the most blocking tonight will be considered regulars from now on.
Tickets are being sold at Hamilton and Ryan's drug store and at the Bob and Ed store in addition to the high school field ticket office. Persons who buy duets uptown will escape any congestion that might exist at the main gate.

Probable lineups follow:
Circleville Worthington
Jackson L.E. Cabell
Hill L.G. Pyle
Arlidge L.G. Wharlington

EASTERN STORM FORCES LEAGUE TEAMS TO HURRY

NEW YORK, Sept. 23.—(UP)—The hurricane along the Atlantic seaboard caused National league officials and managers to resort to unprecedented expedients today to fulfill schedules and keep the hot race for the pennant going.

Umpire "Beans" Reardon, marooned in Boston, used the radio to contact League President Ford Frick. In a regular broadcast, Reardon explained his predicament and asked listeners to telephone Frick. Frick got hundreds of telephone calls relaying the message.

The St. Louis Cardinals, marooned with Reardon and two other umpires, took a plane from Boston last night and transferred to train in New York to keep their scheduled engagement with the Chicago Cubs in Chicago on Saturday.

Bill Lee Keeps Chicago Team In Pennant Race

NEW YORK, Sept. 23.—(UP)—In April and May a whispering campaign was going the rounds that Big Bill Lee was a quitter—that he couldn't go the route when the pressure was on him. Five times the Chicago Cubs gave him a substantial lead and he was hammered from the box.

It began to look like what they were saying was true until the afternoon of May 19 when Lee, a soft-spoken Louisiana boy with a motion picture profile, toed the mound at the Polo grounds. He cut down the Giants with his dancing fast ball in one of the masterpieces of the season—a dramatic 1-0 victory in 10 innings.

Lucky, some said. Lee said nothing. He just kept pitching and winning. He hung up 13 victories and then he hit a cold streak and they revived the whispering campaign.

Lee continued to take his turn—rearing his leg high in the air and firing away. He was routed a few times and then he found the winning touch again.

Nears Hubbell Mark

He blanked the Pirates on Sept. 5 by a 3-0 score. He did a relief job of an inning and one third on Sept. 7 without allowing a run. He shut out Cincinnati on Sept. 11, 2-0. He whitewashed the Giants on Sept. 17, 4-0. Yesterday he goose-egged the Phillies, 4-0.

Those four straight shutouts tied the National league record established in 1908 by Ed Reulbach of the Cubs and equaled in 1911 by Grover Cleveland Alexander. Lee's 37-1-3 consecutive shutout innings need only another 9-inning shutout to top Carl Hubbell's National league record of 46 straight innings without a run, made in 1933.

Lee's triumph gave him 20 victories, tying Paul Derringer for the most triumphs in the National league this season. Clay Bryant pitched the Cubs to a 2-1 win in the second game of yesterday's doubleheader and kept Chicago in the pennant race.

Pittsburgh maintained its 3½ game lead by taking a twin bill from Brooklyn, 6-0 and 11-6. Jim Tobin pitched a 4-hit game to win the opener and the Pirates out-slugged the Dodgers to grab the nightcap. The Pirates now can win by annexing five of their 10 remaining games even if the Cubs take eight of their 11 games.

The New York Giants moved into third place by winning twice from Cincinnati, 6-1 and 2-1. Hal Schumacher allowed only six hits in winning the opener and Harry Gumbert was stinging, permitting only three to win the night, 2-1. Mike Haslin's two homers won the second game.

HOOSIER SQUAD TAKES SHAPE AS STEAM ROLLER

Great Sophomore Array May Bring Indiana National Ranking

BLOOMINGTON, Ind., Sept. 23 (UP)—Everyone is asking about Bo McMillin's steamroller sophomores down at Indiana.

They're the boys who, as freshmen, a reporter laconically said "were the only team in the country that could lick the Pitt Panthers."

They're the fighters who, Mal Elward, Purdue University coach and the Hoosiers' greatest rival, told the United Press, "without a doubt will be the toughest in the Big 10 conference and one of the best in the nation."

They're the Hoosiers whose coach was selected in a nationwide poll to lead the college all-stars against the Washington Redskins, national professional champions.

In Spring practice McMillin began wiping the tears which had stained his face since Corby Davis, all-American fullback, hung up his moleskins. And he had shed a few for quarterback Frank Filchock, Charles McDaniel, a Big Ten medal winner at tackle, and "Jick" Kenderline, who piloted the team from an end position.

Fresh Team Great
Then Bo's streaked face suddenly began to beam. He saw roaring across the sod the fastest, toughest, willingest crew of frosh that ever trampled a varsity. The youngsters tackled everything from the gymnasium to the goal posts, and charged through all material except the stadium's cement wall.

They forward passed until the few observers clustered about went home babbling.

The yearlings roughed it up until McMillin halted them in a frightened, yet secret delight that he had the makings of one of the greatest teams since his days with the "Praying Colonels" of Centre College.

Bo's frown changed to a wide-open grin. He won't say much now at the start of the season.

13 Returning Lettermen
The preliminary roster: Lettermen—13; reserves—7; sophomores—48.

Capt. Paul Graham, Eldorado, Kas., a rangy 6-footer and one of the best blocking backs in the business, will call signals.

Probably most aggressive among veteran linemen is a fast, 230-pound tackle already pointed out as Indiana's most likely candidate for all-America honors, Robert "Spanky" Haak of Hammond, Ind., who is returning for his third year as a regular.

A big 23-year-old Youngstown, O., lad last year exhibited all the finesse needed by a great end. He has sticky fingers on passes, can outdistance a sprinter, and knows how to crash interference. Mal Elward will endorse Frank Patrick as Indiana's toughest end.

Plugging his famous "five-man" backfield with four sophomores will be a pleasure to McMillin. Around Graham he will swing the deceptive shift, in which two fullbacks, one listed as a guard, come into the backfield. The big soph backs, outstanding despite their inexperience, will fit in easily.

Backfield Material Abounds
Most impressive among the backs in Spring practice were Floyd Timmore, Elkhart, Ind.; Edward Herbert, Gary, Ind.; Bob Zinsmeister, Huntington, Ind.; Joe

Schmidt Juggles Buck Backs; Wedebrook Hurt

COLUMBUS, Sept. 23.—(UP)—Facing the three toughest opening gridiron games in Ohio State history, Coach Francis Schmidt took extra precautions today lest any of his football pupils relax their efforts in belief they have "cinched" starting assignments against Indiana, Oct. 1.

The wily Buck coach again juggled his backfield candidates in wholesale fashion and promoted Stu Whitehead, Columbus sophomore, to left end in place of Ross Bartsch as the Bucks prepared a defense against Hoosier passing and running formations.

Co-captain Mike Kabealo moved in at quarterback; Sophomore Jimmy Strausbaugh, hard-running Chillicothe contribution, to left halfback, and the veteran Johnny Rabb, Akron, to fullback on the Red team, tentatively regarded as the first-string outfit.

The promoted trio replaced three sophomores—Jim Sexton at quarterback; Don Scott at halfback and Al Zuchego at fullback. Sexton and Scott have worn Red jerseys for the past week but Schmidt sought to guard against over-confidence in addition to instilling flexibility in his backfield.

The backfield corps received a temporary setback when it was announced, Howard Wedebrook, senior halfback from Portsmouth, one of the squad's most improved players and probably its best punter, would be out for four or five days with a hip injury. Wedebrook will be ready for Indiana but may not be as far along in skill as his mates because of the lay-off.

Prospect of a dazzling offensive battle between Ohio State and Indiana will attract approximately 50,000 persons a week from tomorrow in Ohio stadium. Ticket Manager Henry D. Taylor said. Sales for five home games are approximately $30,000 ahead of last year to date and $8,000 ahead of the record-year of 1936.

Taylor's office has sold 5,000 season books to the general public, a 15 per cent gain over last year. Added to student and faculty books sales anticipated next week, the season ticket total should reach 20,000, Taylor believed.
He predicted a sell-out of 72,000 fans for the Southern California game here Oct. 8.

KRIEGER SIGNS CONTRACT FOR HOSTAK FIGHT
SEATTLE, Sept. 23.—(UP)—Solly Krieger of New York has accepted terms to meet Al Hostak of Seattle in a middleweight championship bout at Seattle on Nov. 1. Promoter Nate Druxman announced today. Hostak is not recognized as champion by the New York commission. Druxman said that Krieger had agreed to the usual challenger's share of 12½ per cent of the gate receipts. He predicted a gate of about $40,000.

REDS, PIRATES TANGLE; DOUBLE LOSS DAMAGING

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 23.—(UP)—The forlorn Cincinnati Reds meet the rejuvenated Pittsburgh Pirates today in the first of seven games that may decide the National League pennant race but not for the Reds.

A double-shelling, 6 to 1, and 2 to 1, by the New York Giants Thursday buried once and for all the last Cincinnati title hope besides dumping the McKechnie clan into fourth place behind the Giants.

Bucky Walters was to take the mound against the first-place Pirates today as Cincinnati sought to gain back third and the extra cash involved in the final standings. In so doing they may determine the long-shot chance of the second-place Chicago Cubs to catch the Pirates in the final 10 games of the season.

Pittsburgh, by sweeping two games from Boston Thursday, held three and one-half games margin and can afford to lose three of the last 10 contests and still capture the flag even though the Cubs takes all their games, an unlikely possibility. Cy Blanton was slated to hurl for the Pirates against Cincinnati in the opener.

YESTERDAY'S HERO—Big Bill Lee, Cubs' ace who pitched his fourth straight shut out to tie the National league record and keep his club in the pennant race.

"CAPITULATION" TO NAZIS HIT BY FRENCHMEN

Workers Urged To Show Their Dissatisfaction At Czech Letdown

DEMONSTRATIONS SEEN

Newspapers Claim Nation

Not To Permit More Concessions

PARIS, Sept. 23 — (UP) —

French workers were urged to demonstrate today against French and British "capitulation" to German demands on Czechoslovakia.

Premier Edouard Daladier faced protests as he strove to avert a crisis which might disrupt the talks between Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain and Adolf Hitler.

Leftists and leaders of the general confederation of labor appealed to workers to demonstrate outside factories despite a government ban on assemblies.

Communists and Socialists demanded that the government be replaced by a national union coalition "to return France to firm collective security," meaning support of Czechoslovakia.

Ministers Change Minds

Temporarily, Daladier had saved the cabinet from collapse by dissuading at least six ministers from resigning.

A serious conflict threatened both among the members of the cabinet and the government's parliamentary majority.

In addition to the conflict in the cabinet, Leon Blum, Socialist leader, led a party attack on Daladier, the Communists redoubled their criticism, and many radicals were restive despite official endorsement of Daladier by party executives.

In order to save the cabinet, Daladier put before each minister who threatened to resign the argument that the maintenance of unity was urgent. He also warned that he would not resign himself.

The press stressed the disparity between the moderate British Communiqué covering the Godesberg talks and information given French newspapers in Germany that insisted the German army now had the right to enter the Sudeten area.

No More Concessions

Newspapers were unanimous in warning that France was committed only to the cessation of Sudetenland, after peaceful delimitation of the frontiers, and would not tolerate a single additional concession.

It was reported that a socialist and communist commission had agreed to fight for an immediate convocation of parliament.

The Godesberg correspondent of the Agence Radio, semi-official French news agency, reported that the "Sudeten question was completely settled."

The agency said the following points had been decided:

1. Occupation today of the Sudeten region by the German army.

2. Exchange of populations in certain districts.

3. Cancellation by interested countries (Germany and Czechoslovakia) of all mobilization measures taken during the emergency.

4. Application of all measures within one week.

ROTARY URGED TO ADHERE TO CLUB POLICIES

District Governor Makes Official Visit To Circleville

COMMUNITY WORK CITED

Bert F. Downey Confers
With Directors And Committeemen

Bert F. Downey, Springfield, district governor of Rotary, Thursday, made his official visit to the Circleville club.

His address was on "The Continuity of Rotary," in which he stressed the importance of attendance and members taking an interest in Rotary projects. He urged that Rotarians become more familiar with the teachings of Rotary and employ them in business and professional life.

Members were asked to take a greater interest in the boys and girls of the community, assist them in their problems, and take an increased interest in community activities.

The district governor was presented a Kippity Kit by the Circleville club.

Previous to the luncheon an assembly meeting was held in which directors and chairmen of the various committees made reports to the governor on the progress made during the last year and of plans for the coming year.

The Rotary club has a membership of 57.

Kiwanians Preparing for Festival Series Opening

THE Fred Astaire-Ginger Rogers scene, a part of the Rufus Rose Marionette show, planned by the Kiwanis Club on Oct. 3 is shown above.

Circleville Kiwanians are in the midst of a ticket selling campaign for a series of four entertainments to be conducted in the high school auditorium beginning Monday, Oct. 3. All proceeds from the entertainments will be put into the club's fund for the benefit of underprivileged children.

The entertainments will be staged Oct. 3, 10, 17 and 24 with season tickets being sold covering all four evenings. Seats may be reserved at the Clifton-Yates Motor Co. garage beginning Monday, Sept. 26.

The program operating under the Collins Management service of Rochester, N. Y. will include the Rufus Rose Marionettes, Robert M. Zimmerman, deep sea diver; the Bessie Andrus artists, and the comedy "Mary's Other Husband".

The marionette show is first in the schedule. Rufus and Margo Rose are nationally rated as outstanding in the marionette show business. In 1933 the Rufus Rose marionettes played to 10,000,000 persons at the Century of Progress. They will present "Hansel and Gretel," the Marionette Carnival, "Togo", world famous clown; Fred Astaire and Ginger Rogers of movie fame; Sonja Henie, famous skater, and "Oscar", trained seal.

FAIR CROWDS TO SEE CAMEL-BACKED ENGINE

SCRANTON, Pa. (UP)—One of the interesting exhibits at the New York World's Fair will be the last of the anthracite-burning, camel-back locomotives which puffed through 32 years of service for the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western Railroad Company.

Saved from the scrap heap by the New York Chapter, Railway and Locomotive Historical Society, Engine No. 952, last of its ancient ilk, will show fair visitors how far railway transportation has progressed since the hey-day of its use.

The ponderous locomotive was legislated out of use last December when Thomas L. Taber, New York, persuaded rail officials to let him and friends rehabilitate it for display at the fair.

Mrs. T. Bennett, who has been a patient at White Cross hospital, was returned Saturday to the home of her sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Earnest Rowland and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Petty entertained with a birthday dinner Sunday, honoring birthdays of Harold Hurt and son, Paul Edwin. Those to enjoy the day with

THEATRES

AT THE CLIFTONA

A check-up on the fan mail received by Gene Autry, Public Cowboy Number One whose latest film, "Man from Music Mountain," is scheduled to open tonight on a Double Feature program with "Come on Leathernecks" at the Cliftona Theatre, explodes the popular theory that western pictures are appreciated only in the well-known "sticks." Seventy-three percent of all fan mail received by Autry comes from large Metropolitan cities such as New York, Chicago, Philadelphia, Detroit and San Francisco.

Twenty years of dramatic history, four years of intensive preparation and three months before the camera have been compressed into two hours of thrilling entertainment in "Marie Antoinette," the spectacular new picture starring Norma Shearer and Tyrone Power, which opens a four day showing Sunday at the Cliftona Theatre.

AT THE CIRCLE

One of the most realistic and dramatic hand to hand conflicts since the historic fight in "The Spoilers," was staged by Fred Scott, singing star, and John Merton, heavy, in the cabin scene of "Knight of the Plains," now showing at the Circle Theatre.

With the firm conviction that she wanted to be a motion picture actress, Judy Garland walked onto the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer lot one day and announced to all and sundry that she was looking for a job. She got it. She was twelve years old at the time.

Judy was born with a love of the theatre. Her parents, Frank A. and Ethel Gunn, and her two older sisters, Virginia and Suzanne, were professionals. Judy was born in Grand Rapids, Michigan.

She made her screen debut in the short, "Every Sunday," and is now appearing in "Thoroughbreds Don't Cry" at the Circle Theatre.

AT THE GRAND

Charles Winninger, who is co-featured with Alice Brady in Universal's "Goodbye Broadway," now at the Grand Theatre, is one of five brothers who made good in the theatrical world. Joe, Frank and John retired nearly ten years ago. Charles won fame on Broadway and then went to Hollywood, where he is in constant demand. His other brother, Adolf, although a wealthy man, still feels the call of the stage at times and acts as his brother's "stand-in."

OAKLAND

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Hedges and son Paul entertained Mr. and Mrs. Harry Poling of Carroll, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Chambers and son Leewood of Laureville R. F. D.,

Mr. and Mrs. Will Fausnaugh and daughters Esther and Darletta at dinner, Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Clay Waits of Lancaster, Mrs. I. H. Milligan, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Milligan motored to Serpent Mound, Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Arter and Mr. Leo Britch were Sunday dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Gardner of near Delmont.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Heigle, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Heigle and daughters were Sunday dinner guests of Mr. John Heigle and family of Logan.

Mr. and Mrs. Lowell Defenbaugh and daughter and Miss Bernice Knox of Columbus were Sunday dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Defenbaugh.

Junior Kistler was the Sunday dinner guest of Wilbur and Glenn Swain and in the afternoon they visited Oliver Chambers.

Luther Heigle spent Sunday at Old Man's Cave.
